SUBJECT : Georgetown Career Panel

1. The Georgetown School of Foreign Service is organizing a series of career panels for the benefit of its undergraduate and graduate students. 2. I have talked to Jack Blake and suggested to him that it might be good to have a representative from the Office of Personnel participate in the panel. He agreed and suggested that I communicate with you that his recommendation for the Office of Personnel representative would be [ ]

Paul-- I recommend that [redacted] in OGI take this on over at George- town. She is interested. Perhaps she should take someone from O/Pers along for technical questions. It's clearly worth doing for a bunch of kids looking at a tough job market. [redacted]

Dear

Further to our telephone conversation, the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University is organizing a series of informational career panels for the benefit of its undergraduate and graduate students. We would very much like to include among these panels one on the intelligence profession. We would very much welcome your organizing such a panel for us, if that is at all possible.

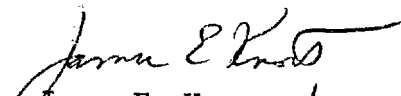

What we are seeking to provide these undergraduate and graduate students with is a description of the variety of careers to be found in the intelligence profession; some assessment -- limited as it may need to be -- of the future trends of the national intelligence requirements; and a realistic description of the kinds of applicant qualifications in the near and not-so-near future that the Agency is looking for and that a student might wish to direct his studies toward.

for people and by area

We would like to aim at a date sometime in mid-November but are open to your suggestions on this. It would best be scheduled for sometime in the afternoon period of 2 - 5:30 p.m. We would be glad to hold the session here at the School but also would welcome the opportunity to have it held in the Agency Headquarters Building if the provision of transportation were possible. It is difficult to estimate the number of students who would participate but we expect it might be in the 50 - 100 range.

If I can supply further information, I would be only too happy to do so. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

James E. Knott
Assistant Dean
